"MERGED"

FIRE IN BIG HIGH STREET FACTORY

Two Alarms for Blaze in Wholesale District, Which Firemen Quickly Extinguished—Creat Crowd Drawn by Volume of Smoke Thrown Out.

A fire which for a time threatened the destruction of much property in the wholesale leather district broke out just before noon to-day in the four-story brick building at No. 225 High street.

A second alarm was turned in a few minutes after the first alarm was sounded.

Wax and paraffine stored in the upper floors furnishedeasy fuel for the flames.

THOUSANDS THRONG STREETS.

The building in which the fire originated is surrounded by buildings in which much inflammable material is stored. The firemen made unusual efforts to keep the flames from spreading to these buildings.

Thousands of persons streamed into High and Congress streets to watch the fire. Every window in High street for several blocks on each side of the burning building held spectators. Hundreds of men climbed to the roofs of surrounding building there to watch the progress of the fire.

Great danger was feared from explosion, as many chemical stocks are kept in the neighborhood.

FOUR BARELY ESCAPE.

The fire, which was caused by the overturning of a kettle of burning wax in the wax goods factory of Knox & Moore, on the top floors of the building, caused damage amounting to several thousand dollars to that establishment.

Four men employed there had narrow escapes from death.

They escaped from the burning building just in time.

A young woman employed as a stenographer on the first floor of the building fainted during the excitement. She was carried into the street where she was revived.

Defies Protest Against B. & M. Merger.

MELLEN NEW ENGLAND BOSS

Tells Legislators That Public Interests Will Be "Cared for."

The hearing before the Legislative Committee on Railroads, at which a mighty protest has been made by citizens against the merging of the New Haven and the Boston & Maine railways, was continued today at the State House, where President Mellen yesterday appeared and practically dared the lawmakers to thwart his plans to gobble up all of the railway property of the Commonwealth.

George W. Moore, vice-president of the Fruit and Produce Exchange, composed of 720 business men of Boston, told the committee to-day that the merger question was discussed at a meeting of his organization yesterday and that they were of the opinion that a special session of the Legislature should be called to consider this important matter, and that it should not be rushed through in the manner proposed.

"Governor Guild should have made specific suggestions to the Legislature," said Mr. Moore. "Instead of the general ones he gave in his message."

J. Russell Marble, a Worcester merchant, criticised Mr. Mellen's action before the committee and characterized his information as "not air."

Wields Chains About Rivals.

With Mellen, the new Eastern railway king, on the stand before the committee, one of the most serious acts in the history of the dissolution period was portrayed. A great crowd listened to this powerful money potentate coolly and almost cynically tell how he had welded the chains about the limbs of far remaining independent railways of this section of the country.

Mr. Mellen admitted that the New Haven road had already purchased a great deal of the stock of the Boston & Maine, that it had bought trolleys in this State in opposition of the law, and that it would not even stop committing its monopolistic work until the question under consideration was decided.

The committee over once embarrassed the railway president. Not a penetrating, scorching question did one of them ask him. When he was addressed by one of the members there was a noticeable tremor in the voice of the interrogator—an apologetic tremble.

"No Law Against It."

Senator Vahey attempted to get Mr. Mellen to promise that he would not purchase any more stock of the Boston & Maine until the matter was legally adjudicated. This was the copy of the railway president.

"There is no prohibition against buying shares of the Boston & Maine. If I had the money I would buy stock. Why shouldn't I? Is there any law in Massachusetts against it?"

"I think there is."

"Why don't you invoke it?"

"If I were the attorney-general," replied Mr. Vahey, "I would."

"Perhaps," suggested Mr. Mellen, "that is the reason you are not the attorney-general."

When Lawyer Louis D. Brandeis tried to cross-examine Mr. Mellen he fled.

"I should like to ask a question at this time," fairly shouted Mr. Brandeis at the retreating back of the president, "purely in order that Mr. Mellen—I want to tell him some things."

"I will read them in the newspapers," said President Mellen, as he kept on his way. And his clique applauded.

The crowd closed behind him, while the chairman remarked, with his eyes on Mr. Brandeis:

"Mr. Mellen does not wish to answer the question and the committee does not wish to compel him to."

"I assume that," rebuked Mr. Brandeis.

Mr. Mellen is still in Boston, but it is not thought that he will appear again before the committee, as much as some of the gentlemen, whom he does not appear to dominate, would like to have a chance to ask him some questions.

He went to his office at the South Station, going right about carrying out his plans regardless of the legislative committee hearing.

One of the first persons he saw to-day was Lawyer Arthur Russell, attorney for the New Haven road. Later he met Robert

Mellen's Recipe for an Attorney-General

Senator Vahey wanted a promise from Mr. Mellen that he would not acquire any more Boston & Maine stock while this legislation is pending.

"Why not?" asked Mr. Mellen.

"But it is against the law," said Mr. Vahey.

"Then why not enforce the law?" the president replied.

"I would," said Vahey, "if I was the Attorney-General."

"Perhaps," said Mellen slyly, "that is why you are not."

COLLINS WED THREE MONTHS AGO SECRETLY

Mrs. H. Murphy of No. 95 Calumet street, Roxbury, today announced that for the past three months her daughter, Sadie, has been the wife of Jimmie Collins, the ball player.

Mrs. Murphy said that she herself did not know exactly where the marriage had occurred, but that she knew Collins and her daughter were married.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins are now at the Continental Hotel, Philadelphia. Mrs. Murphy says she is unable to tell where they intend to settle.

Mrs. Collins is twenty-seven years old, a graduate of the Mission School in Roxbury, and is one of a family of seven.

One of her sisters is the wife of Sergeant Goode of police station No. 16. Another sister is the wife of Patrolman Barry of police station No. 2.

Married in Buffalo.

Mrs. Murphy said to-day:

"My daughter and Mr. Collins have known each other for about four years. They were engaged for several months before they were married. I think they were married in Buffalo, N. Y., but I am not sure.

"My daughter, since her marriage to Mr. Collins, has been traveling with him on the trips the baseball team has made.

"Now that Mr. Collins has left the Boston team for the Philadelphia team I suppose my daughter will live in the latter city, although I do not know."

Collins yesterday played third base for the Philadelphia American League team. He was the third baseman of the Boston American League team from the time the team was formed till last week. He was manager of the team till last year.

He was traded last week to Philadelphia for Knight, who is now playing Collins's old position at third base for the Boston American League team.

ORCHARD UNMOVED AS HE RESUMES TALE

STEPS LIGHTLY TO STAND TO AGAIN FACE THE GRILL IN HAYWOOD TRIAL.

BOISE, Idaho, June 12.—When Harry Orchard, the self-confessed slayer of eighteen men, returned to the stand to-day for his seventh day on the grill, his appearance showed a marked contrast to that of Attorney Richardson, the man who has buried every known legal harpoon and barb at the witness without penetrating the armor of stoicism in which the witness has encased himself.

Orchard, calm and unperturbed, stepped to the stand, with a light step, and after casting a glance over the packed court room settled himself comfortably in his chair without the slightest indication of annoyance or anxiety over the disagreeable doings that he knew were before him.

Richardson, on the other hand, is beginning to show the strain under which he is laboring.

Women to Refute Orchard.

By the testimony of three women dragged as unwilling witnesses into the trial by Orchard himself, the self-confessed slayer's story of death and destruction may be riddled by the defence and cast out of court as a gigantic fiasco of lies.

These women are Mrs. "Steve" Adams, Mrs. George A. Pettibone and Mrs. Charles H. Moyer.

That "Mrs. Adams" was involved, according to Orchard's testimony, in a plot to rob Judge Goddard in Denver in the Spring of 1905. She will deny on the witness stand that she was ever connected with any of the crimes in which Orchard admits he was chief conspirer.

Mrs. Pettibone and Mrs. Moyer are slated by the defence to appear as witnesses to support the declarations of their husbands that the latter were not murderers, as Orchard asserts. They will attempt to clear the names of the officials of the Federation of Miners and refute statements of Orchard that they were involved in death plots.

Called Mrs. Adams "Blind."

Mrs. Adams, comely, young and attractive, sat in the courtroom with Mrs. Pettibone when Orchard, replying to a question of Cross-Examiner Richardson, startled every one by bringing her in as a principal in the plot against Judge Goddard's life.

"She went along as a blind," he said, detailing how Mrs. Adams accompanied the alleged conspirators when they trailed the Judge, in murder lust.

All eyes were at once turned on the young woman, whose face flushed as she nervously fingered a rose she was holding in her hand, immediately after which her eyes blazed with anger and she vigorously shook her head in denial.

Aside from this, the chief development came outside the courtroom. "Steve" Adams himself, brought here was a witness for the prosecution, announced that he would not testify against Haywood.

"I will not corroborate Orchard as I was ordered by the chiefs of the Western Federation of Miners to murder gamblers. The prosecutors of Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone tried to prove that I killed Tyler, but they didn't do it, and they can't fix that crime on me. I never killed Tyler. When I went back on the story I told during the time I was held here in the penitentiary they started in to shove me through. They can do it, but I won't be used to send anybody to the gallows."

MYSTERY IN LOSS OF U. S. LAUNCH AND 11 MEN

ADMIRAL EVANS TAKES STEPS TO ARREST OFFICERS OF COLLIDING STEAMERS.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The mystery surrounding the loss of the launch of the Minnesota with six midshipmen and five sailors in Hampton Roads yesterday, has not yet been solved. There is a strong belief, however, that the boat was run down by a steamer, as a report from Norfolk says that Admiral Evans knows the name of the vessel and is preparing to cause the arrest of her captain and crew.

The navy department has sent instructions to the admiral to make the most thorough investigation and to report frequently by wire on the developments. Admiral Evans has already convened a board of inquiry.

Much gratification is felt by officers of the navy department to-day over the fact that Lieutenant Randall, who was at first reported to have been lost with the others, had put in his appearance later in the day. He had intended taking the launch back to the ship and missed it by only a few minutes, necessitating his stopping at a hotel in Norfolk.

The men known to have been lost are Midshipman Philip H. Field, William H. Stevenson, Franklin P. Holcomb, H. L. Holden, Henry Clay Mortis, Jr., Walter Ulrich; Seamen R. H. Dodson, Jesse Conn, Frank R. Plumber, Harry L. Vaughorne, George W. Westphal.

The six midshipmen came ashore to attend a ball on the exposition grounds. It was after midnight when the party got away on the return trip.

The monitor Florida found a cape afloat in the Roads, which has been identified as that which was worn by Midshipman Ulrich.

The coast on all sides of Hampton Roads is being patrolled for bodies that may possibly wash ashore. The police of surrounding cities and towns and the Powhatan Guards at the Jamestown Exposition have been called to assist in the search.

DOREY WINS IN SUIT BROUGHT BY HIS WIFE

The Court Decides That Her Charges Were Not Substantiated.

Judge Lawton of the Middlesex county Probate Court, East Cambridge, today announced that he would decide against Mrs. Minnie E. Dorey of Jamaica Plain, in her suit against her husband, John Dore, the wealthy real estate owner of Somerville, in her suit charging cruel and abusive treatment and failure to provide properly for her support.

Decides Against Wife.

The judge summoned Attorney Peter Daley of Boston, counsel for Mrs. Dorey in the case, which proved sensational in the extreme owing to the charges which Mrs. Dorey made against her husband, and Attorney Augustine J. Daly, former Mayor of Cambridge, counsel for Mr. Dorey, and told them how he proposed to decide the case.

Judge Lawton told the lawyers that Mrs. Dorey had failed to prove her contention that her husband had treated her cruelly and abusively and had failed to support her properly. He declared that on account of the tender age of their baby, one year, that he would allow Mrs. Dorey to keep the infant and that Mr. Dorey would have to contribute to its support.

Must Support Herself.

As to Mrs. Dorey, the Judge said that it she persisted in living away from her husband he would decide that she should support herself, as she had not shown sufficient grounds for leaving him. He advised the attorneys to consult as to the amount of money Mr. Dorey should be compelled to pay for the support of his child.

Mrs. Dorey is but twenty-seven years of age, while her husband is sixty-two. Mr. Dorey is reputed to be worth $150,000 invested in Somerville realty.

The hearings in the Dorey case aroused great interest among Jamaica Plain and Somerville residents on account of the prominence of the litigants.

FIGHT TO BLOCK STANDARD OIL'S MERGER GRAB

RAILROAD "KING" CYNICAL

Winsor of Lee, Higginson & Co., who are believed to be busy now gathering in Boston & Maine stock for Mr. Mellen. Mr. Mellen expects to go to New Haven at 5 o'clock.

President Roosevelt has already had his attention called to the big merger. New England stockholders have directly appealed to him to prevent the consummation of the great railroad combination which threatens, it is alleged, the industrial and commercial future of not only Boston, but of New England.

The President could not be interviewed, but Secretary Loeb said:

President Promises Action.

"Bring official complaint and the Federal government will act. If an official complaint can be made against Mr. Mellen and his plans it will be immediately referred to the Department of Commerce.

"President Mellen's statement yesterday to the legislative committee conducting the hearing on the bill to prevent that it be obliged to dispose of the Boston & Maine stock the road has acquired by purchase, he will dispose of it to the New York Central road.

It was to keep the stock out of the hands of the New York Central, he said, that he induced interests identified with the New Haven to purchase the stock in the first place. It was simply for sale by a broker. "The Central wanted it, but the owner gave him the first refusal.

"I saw that if we didn't get the stock then the opportunity would never come," said Mr. Mellen. "We were forced to act quickly. There was no time to go before a committee of the Legislature, for the time for the introduction of new business had passed. We had to buy then or not at all, so I induced interests identified with the New Haven to purchase the stock."

Mellen "Won't Dodge."

Mr. Mellen made no bones about admitting that the stock was purchased for the New Haven. "We don't dodge one bit," he said. "What has been done would not have been done but for the corporation, and the corporation stands here before this committee to all intents and purposes as if it had done it itself."

At first Mr. Mellen hesitated about naming the New York Central, because he said his relations with that road were now satisfactory. He said he received an offer from a company yesterday for all the stock of the Boston & Maine controlled by the New Haven interests—about 100,000 shares.

This offer, he said, was based on the theory that something else might happen to make it desirable for him to dispose of the stock held in the interests of the New Haven. And then, he said, if any such thing did happen he would sell the stock to the New York Central.

Tuttle Not an "Anti."

President Tuttle of the Boston & Maine, who was generally believed to be opposed to the merger, surprised the committee by coming out strongly in its favor. He opposed the passage of any legislation which would tend to place additional restrictions on railroad corporations, and declared that the proposition for a union of the Boston & Maine and the New York, New Haven & Hartford is in direct line with the policy of Massachusetts for the last twenty years.

Vahey Wants Law Enforced.

When the committee began to worry as to the absence of the name Boston, Mr. Mellen asked them why they did not put it in the bill.

"If the merger is allowed," he said, "I would be agreeable to painting it on the top, bottom and sides of the cars. As to the proper time of the merger, he would like to have it go through to-day—before to-morrow."

"Now," said Mr. Mellen, "this Boston & Maine stock would have gone to the New York Central if I had not acquired it. I brought influences to bear to show that it would be better to have it come to us, but it is to go to the Central if I am forced to dispose of it."

"I'LL PAINT BOSTON ALL OVER MY CARS."—MELLEN.

I defy any man to show that I have not kept my promises to this State.

I did nothing illegal when I bought up all the trolley roads.

I bought the Boston & Maine, for if I didn't the New York Central would.

I'm an honorable citizen and obey the laws of Massachusetts.

If you allow me to merge I'll paint the name of Boston all over my cars.

I'm not going to do anything that will deprive me of my rights as a citizen.

I'll make Boston if you allow me to merge the railroads.

I can show you that the New Haven has 100 cents of property for every cent of capitalization.

I'd put the name of Boston in a bill if you are afraid its going to be lost.

WOMEN TO REFUTE ORCHARD'S STORY

Orchard doggedly sticks to his statements that Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone inspired and paid him for the assassinations he committed, and no matter how often or in what manner this phase of his story is attacked he settles back to his original "Western Federation of Miners."

Admits Stealing Sheep.

Orchard was reluctant to enlarge upon conditions which prevailed that Winter, when, as he said, Haywood and Pettibone were constantly selecting victims for his industry. But under the pressure of his hour's duration, he admitted that from December to April he received only $55, and that Adams and only a third share of $125. Yet during those months he said the Adamses, man and wife, himself and Ackerman had subsisted without other resource. They lived in a flat in the poorer section of Denver and finally were obliged to move to Globeville, a settlement of cheap shanties outside the city. On one occasion the food supplies were so low that he and Adams stole a sheep from the stock yards.

"Was it harder for you to steal a sheep than it was to go to Pettibone's store and get money to live on?" asked Richardson.

Kept Away From Police.

"No. I could have got plenty of money from Pettibone, but we stole the sheep," was the evasive answer.

"But the fact is that you did not go to Pettibone, is it not?"

"Yes."

"And you were hard up, weren't you?"

"Yes, we were out hard up." Orchard insisted, refusing to admit the straits which necessitated stealing food. There was, however, only one reasonable inference from the testimony—that Orchard and Adams were not receiving from the officers of the Western Federation enough to live upon.

Mr. Richardson sought to make it appear that when they moved to the village of cabins it was because they were afraid of detection by the police in their Denver flat after Ackerman got drunk, was arrested and gave his right name and place of abode.

In Peabody Plot.

But it appears, though not by admission that their revenge was limited. Yet even in poverty Orchard was not idle, he said, as during that time he was engaged in making a bomb with which to "bump off" Governor Peabody. Incidentally he was open to offers from others who wished his services.

Orchard denied he was in a plot to trap Max Malich into committing the murder. Orchard also denied he offered for $100 to murder a business rival of Malich named McDaniel.

The first Peabody bomb was placed about 4 o'clock in the morning by Steve Adams and Orchard. They drove in a livery rig to the corner and Orchard planted the bomb with twenty-five or thirty pounds of powder in it. They did not plant it at night, Orchard said, because they were afraid it would freeze. Richardson carried the witness into an expert disquisition on the manufacture of bombs.

COAL TO RISE 50 CENTS TON

The price of coal is soaring!

By the first of July Boston consumers will pay from 25 to 50 cents more a ton than they are paying now. The reason?

"Well, because——" as the president of the Bay State Fuel Company told a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day.

An official of the C. W. Claflin Company corroborated the statement of the Fuel Company's president.

"Coal prices always advance 10 cents a month, beginning the first of May, during the Summer," he said. He declared that the cost of transportation from the coal fields in the Summer was higher.

'HELP!' GASPS CHICAGO AS JOHN F. TALKS

City Awestruck, Watches Whirling Tour of City by Beantown's Mayor.

CHICAGO, June 12—Chicago, swept by blustery breezes that whirl from off the lake, is holding its breath to-day, trying to keep up to the speed which John F. Fitzgerald, the "Busy, Busy, Bigger and Better" Mayor of Boston, has established.

Accompanied by a verbal cyclone, the Beantown Mayor blew into town yesterday. In ten minutes after he had arrived his record was: Speech toasting the town; speech praising Chicago; list of one hundred questions fired in a rattling gun order.

Mayor Fitzgerald and his cuddest are in the city with Mayor Wentworth of the Bridge, to purchase ornamental bronze doors for the new bridge between Vanbridge and Boston.

When the Hub's head reached the City Hall he greeted the assembled city officials and Mayor Busse with a condescending smile. "Thought we would never get here," he declared. "Slowest transportation system I ever saw. We've been bogged on the West Side. Saw more broken pavements here in ten minutes than I ever saw elsewhere in my life.

"Over on the West Side I noticed a baby sucking dirty water out of a bathtub through a hose. Very bad for the baby. Ought to look into it."

"There are some sections of some cities where they don't have any pavements, and where bathtubs are noticeable by their absence," retorted Mayor Busse, without mentioning any names.

After inspecting the City Hall and giving Mayor Busse a few pointers on proper municipal methods, Mayor Fitzgerald started on a tour of the city. Last evening he attended four dinners given in his honor, and made six speeches, besides a couple of addresses.

"I am enjoying the relaxation very much," he told the newspaper men as he started out this morning.

SECRETLY WEDS PASTOR; GIVES UP HER SCHOOL

Miss Brooks of Everett Causes Sensation by Sudden Change of Plans.

A sensation is caused in school circles of Everett by the announcement that Miss Sybel Louise Brooks, a teacher in the Edward Everett High School, has suddenly married Rev. Charles F. Miér, of Ottawa, Kan., several weeks before it was expected such an event would take place.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Will G. Everson, pastor of the Glendale Baptist Church, with which Miss Brooks was connected, assisted by Rev. C. H. Spalding, secretary of the Baptist Publication Society.

The bride met her husband through the pastor, who was his roommate at the Newton school. The groom last Wednesday was graduated from the Newton theological school. He is the second member of that class to be married here since the graduation, the other being Rev. George McTren, who took Miss Lou Hunttler as a bride last Wednesday night at the First Methodist church.

Two calls have been extended to Mr. Miér, one from a church in Washington State and another from a Colorado parish. He has not yet decided which to accept.

ARREST BOYS FOR STRIPPING HOUSES

The Cambridge police early this morning arrested seven, ranging in age from thirteen to seventeen, charged with stripping two vacant houses of lead and brass pipes, gas fixtures and faucets. The loot is valued at $1,000. The police are now searching for the junk man who bought it for $10.

ROOSEVELT INVITED TO FISH WEDDING

Boston Society Well Represented at Nuptials of Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish's Daughter.

Boston society is represented today at St. Bartholomew's church in New York, here the marriage of Miss Marian Fish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, to Albert Z. Gray occurs late this afternoon. Among the invited guests is President Roosevelt.

Although the church is handsomely decorated, Mrs. Fish was not permitted by the rector, the Rev. Leighton Parks, to carry out all her plans in that regard. The rector thought that were too elaborate and cancelled them. The wedding gifts are especially fine.

Miss Fish received a small fortune in gems, including a pearl collar, with diamond clasp, from Mrs. Herman Oelrichs; a diamond and sapphire ring from Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and one from Mrs. Harry T. Peters; a diamond pendant from the Dowager Duchess of Manchester; a gold bag, set with diamonds and sapphires, from Mrs. William K. Leeds, and a diamond-studded hat pin from Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt.

Mr. Gray's father, Judge John Clinton Gray, and Mrs. Gray send a chest of magnificent silver; th Orme Wilsons, afterdinner coffee spoons; Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, a gold loving cup; Mrs. James W. Gerard, a set of gold plates; Colonel and Mrs. Astor, a gold tea service; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lehr, an antique Japanese clock.

The household servants of he Fish family sent her a silver coffee service.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish has asked everybody to the ceremony. Four o'clock is the hour set, and almost everyone has sent an invitation to the reception which follows at the house.

Rich and poor, old and new, conservative and spectacular—none of the Fish friends nor those of the Grays have been omitted—and the most conspicuous absentees will be the E. H. Harrimans.

MILLIONAIRE STOKES SAYS HE WAS DUPED

Denies Paternity of Boy for Whom Kentucky Beauty Sues for $500 Month.

By Boston American Leased Wire

NEW YORK, June 12.—Millionaire W. E. D. Stokes made vigorous denial to-day of Mrs. Lucy M. Randolph's sworn story of blighted love. Before the Kentucky beauty was recalled to the stand in the Supreme Court at Flushing to continue her cross-examination counsel for Stokes said that witnesses would be called to refute her startling story.

Among these witnesses are several who are expected to swear that the bright five-year-old boy for whose support his mother is suing Stokes for $500 a month could not possibly have been the son of Stokes. It was expected that the letters written by Stokes to Mrs. Randolph would be produced in court to-day, and because of this the courtroom was packed.

Mr. Stokes also announced that he would deny the paternity of the boy. That Stokes expects to claim that he was duped is indicated by the statement of Mrs. Beck, a nurse who was called to attend the new-born. Mrs. Beck was also present when Stoke's first son by his former wife was born.

"I was called to the house in West Eighty-fifth street, where Mrs. Randolph says the child was born, on October 28, 1906," said Mrs. Beck to-day. "They placed the baby in my arms and I said: 'Tell me this child is only three days old?' It looks to me more like a babe of eight months.' Mrs. Randolph asked me if the baby looked like Mr. Stokes and I replied: 'It does not look like the son born Mr. Stokes and his wife. That one was dark and this one has the tightest of hair and blue eyes.'"

SCHOOL HEAD KICKED PUPIL, MOTHER SAYS

Principal Taylor Must Explain in Brookline Court Alleged Ball Game Assault.

BOY STILL IS SUFFERING

Charles H. Taylor, principal of the Edward Devotion Grammar School, has been notified to appear in the Brookline Municipal Court Saturday to explain charges of cruelty brought against him by Mrs. John Halleran, who declares that at a baseball game between the team of his school and the team from the Lincoln School the principal threw her fourteen-year-old son, Francis Halleran, to the ground and kicked him.

Mrs. Halleran yesterday asked that a warrant be issued for the arrest of the principal. This request was refused, but the principal was asked to appear in court Saturday and explain the case. Mrs. Halleran said today that her son was attacked on May 28, after he made a home run for his team against the team of the school of which Mr. Taylor is principal.

Home Run, the Cause.

Her son said:

"I had just made a home run and was standing back of the catcher when suddenly I was thrown to the ground.

"I looked up as I was lying on the ground and saw Mr. Taylor jump towards me and draw back his foot to kick me in the stomach. I threw up my right arm just in time to prevent his heavy boot from hitting me in the body. It caught me on the arm and the arm has been sore ever since. I had to have it in splinters for a week. It is just getting so that I can raise it to my head without it almost killing me."

Mother Denied Warrant.

The boy's mother said:

"I have been denied a warrant, but I am coming again on next Saturday morning. The clerk told me that Mr. Taylor had asked to be heard in the matter before the warrant was granted, and I suppose that I shall have to lose another day's work and accumulate him. He is getting probably ten times the salary that I am and I am helping pay it.

"It is a hardship to me. My husband and I have all we can do to support our family, but I am going to see this thing through and am going to have justice, even if I have to lose money by coming here.

"Frank is a good boy. He stands high in his studies. That is shown by his being on the baseball team. They do not allow any of the boys who are not up in their studies to play on the team.

"I have had to nurse the boy, attending to his arm two or three times every night, and it has pained him so that he has been kept awake for hours every night since the attack."

SAYS PRINCIPAL KICKED HIM.

Fourteen-year-old Francis Halleran, catcher, whose home run, it is alleged, angered principal of school whose team opposed. The principal has been ordered to explain the alleged assault in Brookline court Saturday.

TEAR WEEPING CHILD FROM ITS MOTHER'S SIDE

Judge's Order Separates Parent From Girl and Gives Little One to Guardian.

Despite the cries of little fourteen-year-old Gertrude Nell, who clung to her mother's garments, and the weeping protestations of the mother, Mrs. Annie Gray, of Lynn, Teresa L. Mooney, guardian of Gertrude, and the court officers separated mother and daughter in the corridors of the Court House at Pemberton square yesterday, and the child was led away by the triumphant guardian. The scene presented such pathetic features that even calloused court officers were affected.

Teresa Mooney was appointed guardian in July, 1905, by Judge McKim. It was agreed that the mother should be allowed to visit the child. Since Christmas the little girl has been living with her mother, with the consent of the guardian. In April the guardian demanded the return of the child and the mother refused to part with Gertrude, but filed a petition asking the court to allow her custody of her child. This petition was heard by Judge Grant in Probate Court and the judge decided against the mother, as she had violated the decree of the court in not returning little Gertrude to the guardian when requested. The judge ordered the girl into the custody of the guardian.

PLUG IN SHAFT HURLS THREE MEN TO DEATH

BLOWN OUT BY STEAM WHEN PLACED IN FORGE AT FORE RIVER.

QUINCY, June 12.—Two men were killed and a third fatally injured, dying early this morning, in a remarkable explosion in the forge shop of the Fore River Ship Building Company at 4.15 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the catastrophe being one of a series recently at this plant. The dead men are John Casey, aged twenty-seven, single, of Point Hotel, Quincy Point, and Charles Hegg, aged thirty-three, of No. 7 Nelson street, Quincy, and Charles Sandeen, aged forty, of No. 320 Granite street, Quincy, who died at Quincy Hospital from a fracture at the base of the skull. The explosion was heard three miles away and greatly alarmed Quincy people.

Means Discharge to Talk.

Four of the men who reached the scene of the explosion first yesterday stated that it meant their discharge if it became known to the officials of the yard that they gave out any information in regard to it, and the Quincy police who went to the yard to carry away the bodies of the dead men seemed to be equipped with very meagre information as to how the accident happened.

A propeller shaft, the explosion of which was responsible for the death of the workmen, had been lying on the docks for some time, since it was condemned and taken off of the battleship Rhode Island.

It had been brought into the forge room to be broken up. The piece of metal was twenty-five feet long and seventeen inches thick. Into a hollow place at one end had been placed a seven-pound piece of crude steel. Water had leaked beneath this, and when the shaft was placed into the furnace steam generated and forced the plug out like a projectile from a gun, striking Casey, killing him instantly, then fatally injuring Sandeen, and after plunging through a two-foot space in a trip hammer, struck Hegg on the head, killing him instantly.

Shaft Blown from Forge.

The shaft itself was blown out of the forge sideways, wrecking the big forge on the way, and bringing up a score of feet to one side of the big crane which had supported it.

There were fifteen other men in the forge plant at the time of the explosion and some of these had narrow escapes from death.

COREY TO JOIN SCHWAB STEEL TRUST ATTACK?

Ready to Resign and Help Bethlehem Magnate in Move to Smash Big Corporation.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 12.—That William Ellis Corey, president of the United States Steel Corporation, is about to become the head of the Bethlehem Steel Company, and ally himself with Charles M. Schwab in the latter's fight against the present trust, is declared at Bethlehem, Pa., where are the head offices of that company.

Through the secretary of President Archibald Johnson announced that Mr. Johnson had no intention of resigning in Corey's favor, it is persistently said that he will quit to become chief advisory executive and that Schwab, as supreme manager, with Corey and Johnson as his aids, is about to begin battle against the trust for supremacy in the world's iron trade.

Since the sensation caused by his marriage to Mabel Gilman, Corey has been exchanging his mammoth holdings in Steel Trust stock for certificates of the Bethlehem company, which is headed by Schwab. That Schwab himself has ambitions to make his Bethlehem concern a greater corporation than the trust, there is little doubt.

It is pointed out that, with Schwab, the former president of the trust; Corey, the present president of the trust, and Johnson, the greatest iron master since Carnegie quit ore for peace conferences, the Bethlehem company would thus be holding in management.

So, it is said, the alleged "break" between Schwab and Johnson is all for effect.

FRYE'S SISTER DEAD.

LEWISTON, Me., June 12.—Mrs. Abby Frye Dawes, sister of Senator William P. Frye, is dead at the age of sixty-four years.

WANTS PAY FOR STOLEN KISSES

GRANITE CITY, Ill., June 12.—Miss Stella McLane, of Alton, has appeared in court to prosecute E. A. Zeck, an Alton druggist. She said he visited a physician's office in Alton where she was employed and stole three kisses.

Zeck denies the episode without qualification. Miss McLane is an undeniably pretty that when Justice Kloder saw her he remarked: "One can hardly blame a man for wanting to kiss a girl who looks like that."

TEMPERANCE FOLK PICNIC

Enjoyment for old and young will be provided by the committee having in charge the arrangements for the annual picnic and games of St. Patrick's Total Abstinence and Literary Society at New Downer Landing, North Weymouth, June 17. The New England Amateur Athletic Association has provided a handicapper to supervise the games, which will be run off in the afternoon, when some of the best athletes in and around Boston will compete.

NO INFECTION FROM MILK SAYS DOCTORS

At the 126th anniversary meeting of the Massachusetts Medical Society, last night, these officers were elected: Dr. George W. Gay, president; Dr. Francis Canedy, vice-president; Dr. F. W. Goss, secretary; Dr. B. M. Buckingham, treasurer, and Dr. H. H. Brigham, librarian. The committee on tuberculosis organized and elected Dr. A. T. Cabot chairman, and Dr. Thomas F. Harrington secretary.

The most important paper read during the afternoon was that of Dr. Theobald Smith of the Harvard medical school, in the tuberculosis section, on "The Channels of Infection in Tuberculosis." He said it is a misapprehension that bovine and animal tuberculosis and human tuberculosis were the same, and people are unnecessarily scared about milk.

The feature of the evening was Dr. Frederick C. Shattuck's lecture on "The Past, Present and Future of Tuberculosis." He agrees with Dr. Theobald Smith that the bacillus of human tuberculosis and bovine tuberculosis is different, and he believes it is irrational to kill the cattle which are otherwise well. A wise dairy inspection would serve all purposes.

The annual dinner of the society is held to-day at 1 p. m.

WOMAN FLEEING SLAYING MOBS ARRIVES HERE

After weeks of hiding, during which time she was in deadly fear, her husband and her three small children be made victims of the rioters in Lodz, Russia, Mrs. John Chmielewski, a pretty Russian, arrived here today on the Red Star line steamer Manitou to join her husband, sealer partner of the John Chmielewski Company, soap manufacturers, No. 36 Portland street. She brings a harrowing tale of wild disorders in her native city.

"It is almost impossible to describe the state of terror which exists in Lodz. For months the people have been rioting and killing women and children. The people are in deadly fear of their lives and all classes keep in doors as much as possible, fearful lest they be attacked on the streets and killed," said Mrs. Chmielewski, through an interpreter, to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter.

"For months together with my children I have been in hiding near Lodz, patiently waiting a chance to leave the city and come to America to join my husband. At times I despaired of being able to escape."

BIG PAVING JOB GIFT BY DOYLE

With Mayor Fitzgerald in Chicago shouting for a "bigger, better and busier Boston," his superintendent of streets, James H. Doyle, awarded, yesterday, to the Barber Asphalt Company, a West Virginia corporation, without competition, a contract for about $1,300 worth of asphalt paving in Trinity place.

This is the same company which divided with the Boston Asphalt Company of New York the contract for asphalting Columbus avenue last year. The contract awarded by Superintendent Doyle is one of the kind which are very pleasing to contractors, no lump sum being specified for the job, payment being by measurement of the work.

ASIA MINOR BOWS TO KAISER

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 12.—Germany is rapidly gaining a dominating influence in Asia Minor through the great works undertaken there by the Kaiser's government, chief of which is the construction of the Bagdad railway. He will submit a detailed report of his findings to the State Department.

BOSTON AMERICAN readers have seen or been told that Vanity Fair is a large inclosed city of Summer amusements with tremendous fun edifices, boulevard, central creations of hair-raising and mirthful intent; that it contains every novelty, however expensive; that all is up-to-date, brand-new and wonderful.

It is located one mile out of Worcester and is the beauty and amusement centre of South-Central Massachusetts. It is the place to go and get value for money invested in clean enjoyment. It is a place concerning which there is something important to be told to readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN.

The SUNDAY AMERICAN has a coupon scheme with the White City, to save its readers money and give them lots of fun.

One coupon admits at the great white gate, a concession given the city of Worcester in the Old Mill. By the way, Pike Brothers' Old Mill at the White City is perhaps the longest, most picturesque, most interesting and even the most grotesque trip of its kind to be found.

Then the third coupon gives a ride on the Scenic Railway, locally known as the Zig-Zag River Dive, here in the climax. Best judges say it is the most interesting scenic railway in existence, and the AMERICAN knows that its readers will get the real goods.

"Kid McCoy," former middleweight champion of the world, related by blood to Hume, the English historian, and by marriage to the Ellis Locomotive Works of Schenectady, N. Y., is going to break into society. And he is going to get in, if he has to use an axe.

This intelligence today reached Boston, where "Kid McCoy" is very well known.

When it was coupled the news that Norman Selby, which is the "Kid's" real name, has just spent $42,000 for a house in South Orange, N. J., into this house he and his wife will move.

It is upon the strength of the aristocracy that he intends to make his first attack.

Just now he runs a garage in New York, having disposed of the jewelry business which he entered after he married a rich widow, Mrs. Edward C. Ellis.

Social Club Favored.

That Selby's progress from the padded ring to the drawing room has the full sanction of the men who sold him the house is evidenced by the following statement made by the seller, Thomas Fenton Taylor.

Said Mr. Taylor:

"The people of South Orange may rave and go on all they like. I will put Mr. McCoy against any number of our so-called aristocrats so far as breeding and refinement go. The idea that this smart man and his wife are not the equals of the shoddy aristocracy of South Orange is ridiculous.

Mr. Selby's neighbors will number Edgar Ward, a director of the Prudential Life Insurance Company, the Bamberger's who own the largest store in Newark, N. J., General Howard, Felix Root's former law partner, and Ira Nelson, one of the governors of the New York Stock Exchange.

"Why shouldn't a prize fighter enter society? asked Selby. "My father was a minister out in Indiana. Through my mother I am related to Hume, the great historian. My wife was the widow of the head of the Ellis Locomotive Works."

He is a Born Mixer.

Selby has many social qualities. He is a born mixer. Old friends are to be found in every city in the country where the lights burn after nine o'clock. A story of his prowess has been told.

He is worth a couple of hundred thousand dollars. He would have a great deal more if he had all that he has loaned to friends and accomplices. He used to run a saloon, but he and his partner, George Grant, made it an orderly establishment.

It was on the opening of that saloon that Tom Sharkey, the most economical fighter of them all, signed his interior decorating plans of his own. He announced this determination after other men had bought cigars and drinks for him all evening.

He did not bought anything himself and his pockets were crammed with the cigars bought by his friends.

His Advice to Sharkey.

"Don't start a saloon, Tom," Selby said to him. "Start a cigar store. You've got enough cigars now."

Selby is a demon automobilist. He has had almost as many matrimonial adventures as a member of the Pittsburg Jeut ton.* One of his wives was Indiola Armida, one of the Weber and Fields chorus.

He looks not at all like a prize fighter and he is making money so fast that if South Orange society does not want to let him in as will soon be able to buy South Orange society and move it where he pleases.

Mabel Pratt, who Eloped and is now Freely Forgiven

PARENTS WAIT TO WELCOME ELOPERS BACK

Everett Girl Who Left Home for School Boy Lover is Forgiven.

KEPT COMPANY TWO YEARS

All will be forgiven if Mabel Pratt, whom they believe eloped with Albert McKinnon, will return to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Pratt of Hancock street, Everett. They are waiting for their pretty nineteen-year-old daughter now with open arms.

When Mabel left home Sunday she pinned this note to the dining-room table:

"I ask your forgiveness for leaving home, but I will be with the one I love—so that's why we must part. The Scripture says that all must 'forgive and forget,' so I know you will. Goodby.

MABEL."

Albert McKinnon, the schoolboy lover of Mabel, had been missing since Saturday without leaving any word with his parents. It was later discovered that the young couple were at the South Station, and told a friend that they were "going to Providence to get married."

The young people were in the junior class at Everett High School, and had been keeping company for the past two years. They were prominent in society, and attended a number of class dances together. Young McKinnon is an athlete and a baseball player.

BOY MANGLED UNDER FENDER

While running across Warren street last night, George Buchanan, a nine-year-old boy, living at No. 440 Dudley street, was struck by a Humboldt avenue car and disappeared beneath the fender. He was extricated unconscious. An examination showed he had sustained a severe scalp wound and a fracture of the right wrist, and he was hurried to the City Hospital, where he is reported as being fairly comfortable.

WOMAN LEAPS OFF A MOVING TROLLEY

Rose Bonaparte, residence unknown, in stepping from a moving Boston-bound electric car at Mount Auburn street and Aberdeen avenue, Cambridge, last night, was thrown so violently to the ground as to be rendered unconscious. She was taken to the Cambridge Hospital. Her most serious injury is a bad bruise on the back of her head.

BADLY AFFLICTED WITH ECZEMA

USES CUTICURA AND IS SOON SOUND AND WELL

"I was very badly afflicted with eczema for more than two years. The parts affected were my limbs below the knees. I tried all the physicians in the town and some in the surrounding towns, and I also tried all the patent remedies that I heard of, besides all the cures advised for old women and quacks, and found no relief whatever until I commenced using the Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent. In the Cuticura Remedies I found immediate relief, and was soon sound and well. C. L. Beltz, Tippecanoe, Ind., Nov. 15, '05."

DANDRUFF KILLS HAIR

Cuticura Soap Kills Dandruff

"I was troubled with dandruff on my head ever since I was twelve years old. I had beautiful hair up to that time. The dandruff destroyed my hair. I tried everything I could hear of. I had no doctor, but I went into a drug store where I was well acquainted and asked the druggist if he knew of anything that would be good for me. He said: 'Of course I do. Just get a cake of Cuticura Soap.' I got it, and it did my hair good the first time I used it. My sister-in-law couldn't keep the dandruff off the top of her baby's head, and the hair wouldn't grow. I was there, had a cake of Cuticura Soap with me, I told her about it, and gave her the Cuticura Soap, and in about three months I went there again, the child's head was covered with hair and not a sign of dandruff. My sister said it was the Cuticura Soap. The child is not past three years old and has a lovely head of hair. Mrs. E. W. Shigley, Columbus, Kan., Oct. 25, 1905."

Babies Eligible to Both Bright Sayings and Beauty Contest

SEVERAL people have complained that the pictures they have sent to the Prize Baby Contest of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN have not been listed. Queries are also pouring into the office relative to the Bright Sayings Contest.

Every photograph received at this office and entered according to the rules of the contest has been listed. Many photographs have reached here without names or age or residence or parents' name. It is impossible to list such.

The required identification of each photograph should be on the back of the picture. It is the only safe way to assure them a place in the contest.

Sending the data on an accompanying piece of paper is not according to the rules. In response to many questions, it is stated that the same baby may be entered in both the Beauty and Brightest Sayings contests, and has an equal chance in winning in both.

No limit is placed on the number of Brightest Sayings sent by any contestant. Get your little one's brightest sayings in early that they may be properly listed.

The name and address should always accompany the Sayings.

It is not necessary for publication with the Sayings, but must be in this office for identification at the final judging.

Must Be In Age Limit.

ANOTHER correspondent asks if a child who lived in Boston until she was six years of age is eligible to the "Bright Sayings" contest. The same rules apply as in the Beauty contest. Only Bright Sayings of children within the age limit are considered by the judges.

The prizes for photographs awarded the weekly prizewinners are good until used. The following are a few of many letters of appreciation that have been received showing that people realize that the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN'S offer in these two contests is the greatest and most generous ever made.

Thanks Returned

I received the prize order for ten dollars worth of photographs of my little daughter Florence. Allow me to thank you. Yours most truly,

MISS RALPH WHITMORE.

No. 28 Windsor road, West Somerville.

Good Until Used

The order for $10 of photos of my boy has been duly received. As a constant reader of the AMERICAN I thank you very much.

As my family is in Canada for the Summer is the order good till the Fall, when my boy returns.

Kindly inform me and oblige. Very truly yours,

JOHN CLENDENNING.

78 Ruggles street, Roxbury.

Agreeably Surprised

I wish to acknowledge the receipt of check for baby's photographs and thank you for the same. I was very agreeably surprised, as I hardly thought my boy had much chance among all the beauties.

I should like to see the original photographs, as the reproductions cannot do them justice.

Again thanking you, I am very sincerely yours,

MRS. ELLA B. WALDO.

Everett.

Most Generous Offer

It would be impossible for me to express my thanks for the most generous offer of your up-to-date newspaper.

TOMORROW'S BEST BARGAINS IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES

AN embarrassment of bargains now greets the shopper who has her eyes wide open—if she hasn't, the suggestions below may open them for her.

SHEPARD NORWELL CO. on their glove counter, will have an odd lot of Trefousse and other well-known makes, ranging from $1.65 and $2 to 89 cents. These are in tan, modes, pearl and pastel shades and sizes 5½ to 7. See them, for if they are great values and a supply at that price would be a wise investment.

BAILEY'S RUBBER STORE, on Boylston street, among other things which they are offering at greatly reduced prices, will have ladies' tourist, or "going away" cases, which have been selling for from $30 to $25, now marked to from $5 to $12. These are medium weights, suitable for driving, motoring and a variety of vacation uses. They have so many things that they will need before your plans for a Summer outing are complete that it will be really worth your while to go in there and "rubber" round a bit.

CHANDLER & CO. are prepared to offer you tomorrow a beautiful quality of pongee silks, in plain colors and fancy effects, goods which have been priced as high as $1.50, now for 65 cents. Also fine showings of foulard and surah silks, which were $1 and are now 65 cents. Their fine showing of Jap habutai silks at greatly reduced prices will continue also.

CONRAD'S, on their second floor, will have a special bargain for you in lightweight gauze dress goods, suitable for shirtings at the seashore or mountains, $18.36 values, for $10. These are in sheppard plaids and plain colors.

BUTLER'S, among a perfect maze of bargains, will have women's long white silk gloves, in monquetaire suede leather finish, $1.50 values, for 79 cents.

FILENE'S will offer a special lot of negligees—Camille kimono gowns of dimity in refined and dainty patterns, $2 values, for $1.50; and long kimonos of lawn in "wild violet" patterns, of dainty Hamburg embroidery, $3 values, for $2.

HENRY SIEGEL CO. are showing on the second door Persyrline braid turbans and toques, fancy wire frames, in black and colors. Some ready to trim and others trimmed with Paon velvet and wings. The under brims are of millinery folds of chiffon. The lot includes regular $8 values now marked to $1.45 and 98 cents for quick selling.

FERDINAND'S (The Blue Store) are showing magnificent Sanford heavy brussels tapestry carpet, in out-of-the-loom patterns and regular $1 per yard values, for 65 cents. This price for this grade of carpet speaks for itself in good, strong bargain language.

THE MODEL, on Winter street, offers 17 modish suits, in navy blue only, at $2.95, real $6 values; also a small lot of girls' white dimity polka dot dresses, $3 values, for $1.19; and 67 smartly trimmed hats, one of a kind, for $1.97. The former prices of which were $5 and $6.

DODGE-SPEAR CO. offer you, among other good things which are going at cut prices in their basement this week, a 60-watt "Alba" ball or bathroom lamp for 35 cents; a 40-watt kitchen lamp, with canton base, complete, for 25 cents, and a 25-watt gas globe for 9 cents.

BOYLE BROS. (The Green Store), Washington street, have 25 boys' single-breasted Summer suits, in broken lots and sizes 9 to 16 years. These were good value at $6; to-morrow's price will be $2.98.

BACON'S uptown department store will have those ladies' very scarce out-size corsets, with split front, 36-cm. waist, for 29 cents.

Will Ruin the Hair

ONE of the best hair specialists in Boston, Miss Landie, says that Marcel waving will ruin any healthy, beautiful head of hair. She goes further and states that the Marcel is the most pernicious and barbarous fashion in hairdressing ever adopted in this country. It is even worse than the one time rat that was worn so much and that Prince chignon. Miss Landie absolutely refuses to treat any head of hair that is being Marcelled, nor will she advise it. She frankly tells her applicants for hair treatment that if they are victims of the Marcel she cannot restore life to the hair or health to the scalp. This is what she says about the Marcel:

By Miss Landie

NO ONE can make the scalp clean or healthy, or medicine the scalp with ointment or oil or even brush, more every week the hair is gone over with a hot iron. Sometimes oftener than once a week the hair is hot ironed at the price of time and money.

The hair is plastic, and anyone knows what a hot iron will do to plastic.

The sensitive nerves of hair is nitrogen, carbon, hydrogen, oxygen and sulphur, and the burning or singeing releases the sulphur, which is a necessary element.

The heat destroys the natural oil of the hair and a certain amount of oil must be retained for a healthy scalp.

In time the Marcel waving will ruin any head of hair, although some are affected more quickly than others. Light hair is affected to a less degree because there is more sulphur in light hair.

If this Marcel craze continued, gray hair among young women would become common because the artificial heat destroys all the essentials of the hair.

The girl goes to a hairdresser once a week for a length of time. By the use of brilliantine her hair looks smooth and well kept for a few days after the wave is put on. Then she discovers that her hair ground her face is all short ends. And if she were not afraid to look under a microscope she would find that it is the all split and would look like the fibres of a worn out brush. And if would have to be more life than so many wisps of dried grass.

This wave came over from Paris.

The French women wear it exclusively. But it is a known fact among hair dressers and dermatologists that about eight out of every ten French women wear false hair. Are the American women coming to this? Are they going to allow their hair to be ruined simply to be in fashion?

Expert Says Paris Fad Is Disappearing Rapidly

WHAT has become of the Marcel wave girl?

Once she was omnipresent. She was seen in the shopping district, in the exclusive Back Bay section, in stores, in church and in her home.

Now she is seldom seen.

What is the reason for this ban on the once fashionable style of dressing the hair?

Some of the Marcel girls say that they have discovered that the wave is ruining to the hair. Others say that the wave became so common that they tired of it.

Is the Marcel really injurious to the hair?

The Boston dermatologists emphatically state it is. There is a case now pending in court where a Somerville girl brought suit against a Boston hairdresser for alleged injury to her hair as the result of a Marcel.

"THE HERITAGE OF HATE"

CHAPTER XLII.—Continued

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal Examiner

"I would have made a mighty different case for your client, wouldn't it?" said the woman; "and what would have made it stronger would have been if you had heard from the lips of the servant who told me that Wynn had been meeting Kitty in the grove. He left the house in a terrible rage, muttering that he would kill them both."

"And why was this not told at the trial?" cried Nurse Rachel, thoughtfully.

"The servant was frightened and didn't volunteer, and nobody seemed to make inquiries or care. They had settled on you, and that was enough for them. The girl who told me went back to England a year after that, and she died three fifteen years ago.

"Then my last hope seems gone," said the nurse despondently.

An Interruption

She was interrupted by the entry of an attendant and a young man, who held a bandaged hand half concealed inside his coat.

"Is Dr. Munson or Dr. Harding here, nurse?" inquired the attendant. "This policeman said he wanted to have Dr. Harding attend to his head and arm. He's been shot, but not seriously, and came in himself."

"Dr. Harding will not be for an hour," said the nurse, that I can call some other physician if the patient will wait a few moments."

The wounded man had stopped short and was gazing at her curiously.

"I've met you before, nurse," he said quietly. "It's only a few scratches from a gun that came nigher your missing me. It only needs bandaging, and that can wait an hour or two."

"If it is only bandaging, let me attend to it," said the nurse, quietly but firmly; "at least I can attend to that. I am sure surely do that properly."

"Thank you, ma'am," said the man, as he stripped the coat off and, turning up a shirt sleeve, revealed a bullet wound near the shoulder and another on the wrist. With skill that surprised Rachel and surgeon, the nurse bear over the wounded arm and dressed and bandaged it.

The patient stood unflinchingly as she deftly wrapped the wounded arm and smiled his thanks at the completion.

"Were you shot in making an arrest?" queried the nurse as she finished.

"No; I was shot before I started to make it," returned the detective with a smile. "But I made the arrest right after it. I'll follow him up again as soon as I have I saw him. But we got acquainted right after that, and he's down in the police station now. I got one shot before getting him and another from some of his friends while getting him away. I'll see the other fellows to-morrow."

"It is dangerous work," commented the nurse, and you are a young man. Have you been at it long?"

"This is my second year on the force," he replied. "I don't suppose you ever heard of me"—he voiced the question with a peculiar emphasis—"my name is Sam Kane."

For a moment no token of recognition came from the nurse. Then she started and peered into the detective's face.

"Sam Kane!" she cried. "Could I forget that name? That of the boy who befriended me who believed"—she stopped suddenly, recalling her position and assumed identity, her gratitude toward the youth and her fear of recognition fighting for mastery.

But the eyes of the young man were not puzzled and gleamed with a reassuring glow.

"That's all right," he whispered, "I guess I have known you since I saw you here first."

"And you have not spoken to any one? You still believe in my innocence? The hands of the nurse were stretched out impulsively and then withdrawn with a gesture.

"More firmly now than I did even then," he answered. Again the slow smile lighted up his sharp face, and he said quietly:

"You have just finished dressing two wounds in that I am hearing. These are finished and become I intend before many hours to prove it."

He passed on the hands that had clasped his left hand to cover the face of the nurse, while her lips moved as in silent prayer.

"Tell me of it, oh, tell me!" she pleaded as he still stood silently before her.

"Tell me, nurse," he asked suddenly, "did you know Richard Arter?"

Like the flow of the nurse there came a cry that was echoed from the bed in the ward which Bella Stevens lay.

"Then all hope is not gone," said the woman as she turned a triumphant glance toward the bewildered nurse.

At the questioning look of Kane, Nurse Rachel took the hand of Bella Stevens.

"This is a woman who was my fellow convict in Sing Sing," she said. "She has just told me things concerning the murder of which I never knew, and one of the things was the connection of Arter with the mystery."

The detective started forward eagerly.

"Good—we are fortunate," he cried. "Repeat it—tell me all you know."

As Bella told again the intrigues of the Heath household on the eve of the tragedy of fifteen years before Kane nodded eager assent.

"Kitty—yes, her name was Dangerfield.

A HINDOO SWAIN'S PROPOSAL

A HINDOO father recently received the following letter asking for the hand of his daughter.

"Dear Sir—It is with a flattering penmanship that I write to have communication with you about the prospective condition of your dearest offspring. For some remote time to past a secret passion has flung my bosom internally with loving for your daughter. I have navigated every channel in the magnitude of my extensive jurisdiction, to cruelly smother the growing love-knot that is being constructed in my within side, but the bound lump of affection still nourishes my love-sickened heary.

"Hoping that you will emeordantly ecrdiate in espousing your female progeny to my tender bosom and therefore acquire into your family circle.

"YOUR DUTIFUL SON-IN-LAW."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

GREEN-EYED MONSTER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

At a party about three months ago I met a young gentleman, who, during the course of the evening, asked if he might call upon me. I told him that he might, and since that time he has been calling at my home once every week, and sometimes twice. He has also taken me out several times. He seems to admire me very much, in fact, he has told me that he loves me, but I have no more than a friendly feeling for him.

This gentleman has a chum who also seems to think a great deal of me, but when he shows me even the slightest attention my friend gets very angry. He does not want me to pay attention to any other gentleman but himself, and gets sulky if any of my friends show me the last bit of attention. Do you think he is right in acting so? I am twenty years of age and like to have lots of friends, and it makes me feel badly to have him act so.

Now, dear Miss Fairfax, would you advise me to discourage his calling upon me? I should like to ask his chum to call upon me, as I think he would like to. Would you advise me to do so?

JEALOUSY.

IT is too bad that he is so jealous. If you do not care for him seriously, it would be wiser to give him up, as he seems to be spoiling your friendship with others. Perhaps if you tell him how you feel he will be sensible enough to get over his foolishness. If not, give him up.

A BAD HABIT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

After reading your advice to the lovelorn in your column, I think you are the best one to advise me. I have been keeping company with a young lady, and she has already told me of her love for me, but when I take her out she flirts with different men, of whom she knows nothing. Can you tell me what I can do to make her happy and also what I can do to break her of her habit?

J. B. S.

TELL her that you cannot go out with a girl who insults you by flirting with other men. A refined, well-behaved girl does not do that sort of thing. If your attentions do not satisfy her and she still persists in such behavior, if I were you I would give her up.

Do Girls Always Know When Men Love Them?

ACCORDING to Shakespeare, to love is to "the made of doubts and fears," and most women remember at one time or another taking counsel, like Marguerite, with Nature, and pleading that petal after petal from a daisy, repeating, "He loves me, he loves me not," as each one fell to the ground.

Remembering this experience and finding it supported by the immortal bard, perhaps it be safe to conclude that love, although common to all the world, may often be unknown to its object.

Women, perhaps, are clearer sighted than men to detect love inspired by them, but only let them return it and then all is changed, and the little attention to her which one they must be told in words that they are believed.

Men are apt to think that their attentions to a girl must show her their love, and it sometimes happens that they utterly surprise their girl friends with proposals of marriage when they have only regarded them merely as pleasant companions, quite oblivious to the fact that they might be serious.

When this happens a man will sometimes think the girl "ought to have asked him off sooner, for she must have seen his flame, changing," whereas she did nothing of the kind.

The girls who are best worth winning are not those who think themselves so attractive that they imagine every man who shows them any attention to be in love with them, so it is not fair always thus to blame them.

RUEF'S "YES" SEALS DOOM OF SCHMITZ

San Francisco Awaits Breathlessly Answer That Will Clear or Convict Mayor.

REPLY EXPECTED TO-DAY

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—When Abe Ruef took the stand this morning to testify in the extortion cases against Mayor Eugene Schmitz, the big temple was crowded from floor to dome, and the streets were blocked in both directions by hundreds unable to gain admission. A large force of police was necessary to keep any semblance of order.

Interest in the case is at fever heat, especially in view of the fact that the first and only question asked Ruef when he was put on the stand yesterday afternoon remained unanswered until this morning.

That question was: "Abraham Ruef, in January, 1905, to the house of No. 2,849 Fillmore street, did you give the defendant Mayor Eugene Schmitz, $2,500 in currency?"

Attorney Halts Answer.

The answer "Yes" was trembling on Ruef's lips when Attorney Campbell for the defense made a hurried objection to the question, and court adjourned until this morning.

Will Ruef say "yes" to-day?

If he does, a perfect case will have been completed against the indicted Mayor, notwithstanding the statements issued by Attorney Campbell that he is satisfied that his client will be proven innocent of the crime of extortion.

Meanwhile the city waits on the tiptoe of expectancy for Ruef's answer to that momentous question.

Assistant Attorney Heney is confident of a conviction. John Campbell, for the disgraced Mayor, says his client will be acquitted, and that Schmitz has proven his innocence.

Case Rests With Ruef.

It rests now with Abraham Ruef, the boss of San Francisco. A straightforward story from him will convict Schmitz. Of that there is not the slightest doubt in the minds of the prosecution.

Will he tell a straightforward story?

This morning the Schmitz jury broke fasted at 7 o'clock and then accompanied by Elisor Biggy and four guards, entered three automobiles and went through the Presidio and Golden Gate Park, recurring for the opening of the case at 10 o'clock.

MACDONNELL'S CLERKS TO RUN HIS TWO STORES

Employes Manage Business and Share In the Profits of Holiday Week.

This week is a holiday week for seventy to seventy-five clerks in MacDonnell's two stores in several respects, principally as the management will set aside for the week and leave the employes to conduct affairs as best they can, which will afford them the unique opportunity of running and managing a business themselves.

Needless to say they will be more alert and energetic than ever during this period, although for that matter it is their faithful attention to the interests of their employers that has brought about the adoption of this profit sharing plan.

Until "Employes' Week" prevailed at MacDonnell's four years ago this method of rewarding devotion to duty was unknown in Boston department stores. In fact it is an original MacDonnell idea, which was afterwards copied by other dealers in New York and the West.

As the thousands of friends of the employes themselves will doubtless make a point of purchasing goods at their stores this week, and as the usual amount of business is large at all times, the clerks are sure to receive in the aggregate a sum amounting to many hundreds of dollars, which will be equally divided among them. Added to the weekly earnings which will be paid as usual, this will make a very prosperous week for the clerks.

Spirit of Co-operation.

The spirit of co-operation which is shown mutually by employers and employes alike at MacDonnell's is noticeable throughout the year. It is exceedingly pleasing to both sides. The clerks perform their duties with promptness and carefulness, which are often sadly lacking in such stores. The management realizing this is glad to respond in the corresponding spirit, and in many ways find opportunities to make the daily life of their little army of workers a pleasant and prosperous one.

One of the girls explained the present relations existing in the store in this way:

"Never Ask for a Raise."

"When we first go to work we are told not to ask for an advance in salary because just as soon as MacDonnell sees that we are worthy and trying to be conscientious we find an increase amount in our pay envelope, and do you know," she went on, "there is hardly a week goes by that we do not attend to business and do our best for someone does not get a raise.

"Then, too, we are sure of our positions so long as we tend to business and do our best for the good of the establishment. Girls seldom leave here, except to get married. We like to manage the store for a week. It is fine to see how much we can do, and then it stimulates our pride in the place."

MacDonnell's should add "satisfied clerks" to their present motto, "Good goods, right prices." It would make a most appropriate combination.

SOMERVILLE REFUSES CARNEGIE LIBRARY

A majority of the seven members of the Somerville Democratic Municipal Committee, last night, voted to reject Andrew Carnegie's offer to present $25,000 to the city for a branch library in West Somerville, provided the city government would guarantee an annual appropriation of $2,500 for its maintenance.

LAUNCH "DAY OFF" MADE BY FIREMEN

At high tide to-day the little naphtha launch Day Off, built by the firemen of engine 22, is launched in Boston Harbor. It is a trim little boat, over thirty feet long, its entire construction being completed by the men during their spare time. It was christened Day Off by the young daughter of Chief Ryder.

MAN DEAD, SLAYER IS DYING; DUEL OVER WIFE

JOSEPH TORTORELLA KILLS BROTHER-IN-LAW IN DUEL IN EAST BOSTON.

Battling to save his sister from her infuriated husband who sought to kill her, Joseph Tortorella, thirty-five years old, is dying at the Relief Hospital, and John Sgrol, the brother-in-law, lies dead from bullet wounds resulting from a duel with revolvers, which took place between the two men early to-day at the Tortorella home, No. 980 Bennington street, East Boston.

Tortorella made an ante mortem statement to Medical Examiner Magrath and the police.

His last inquiry was:

"Is Sgrol dead and my sister, Josephine, safe?"

Being assured in the affirmative, he added:

"Then I am ready to die."

The scene of the tragedy was the three-story dwelling at No. 980 Bennington street, Orient Heights, East Boston, owned by William Carr and tenanted on Noble Place by the dying man, wife and three children, as well as by his wife's uncle, Vito Grunta, and family.

Wife Fled From Home.

Monday night, Sgrol's wife had to flee from her home at No. 12 Whitley street, and seek shelter under the roof tree of the residence of Joseph Tortorella, on Bennington street, and was followed by her enraged husband, who, though he had a revolver, dared not in the presence of so many relatives and friends attack her.

Yesterday morning, she returned to her own home on Whitley street and soon afterward her husband left for his place of business in the city. He was proprietor of a market stand at North and Black stone streets. At one time he had a comfortable bank account and commanded a good trade, but since the death of his father, Joseph Sgrol, in a fight among Italians on North street nearly a dozen years ago, he had neglected business.

When he returned home about 11 o'clock last night he was intoxicated and began to abuse his wife. Then he attacked her. He threatened to kill her brother-in-law, Tortorella, at the latter's home on Bennington street.

Managing to escape from his clutches, the wife ran out of their house, leaving their children, three boys, asleep in bed.

Duel with Revolvers.

Sgrol had evidently prepared to go to bed, for he was only partially dressed and in his bare feet when he reached the Tortorella tenement, only a few blocks away. Sgrol's bold rap brought his brother-in-law to the door, and he denied the caller admission, declaring the hour was too late, and ordering him to go home.

This reception so enraged Sgrol that he forced in the door and began firing at his brother-in-law, who, who, to defend himself and protect his sister, had a revolver in hand.

Bullets flew thick and fast, but the death struggle was brief. Tortorella fired five shots and Sgrol three. The first shot fired by Tortorella went wild, but the second inflicted a fatal wound in Sgrol's left shoulder, while the other three penetrated the left breast and side, any one of them being sufficient to cause instant death.

Clasping her five-year-old boy, Maurice, to her breast, Mrs. Sgrol, the widow, when interviewed by a TRAVELER AMERICAN representative today, said:

"I always dreaded it would come to this and my fears increased as days went by. We are Sicilians by birth, coming to this country nearly 20 years ago. Our wedding took place about 16 years ago in my mother's house on Genesee street, Boston, and our three children, Maurice, five, Salvatore, seven, and Josephine, eleven, were all born here. About eighteen months ago, we came over to East Boston and have lived at Orient Heights ever since. My husband beat and abused me awfully. I tried to calm him and bear it all, but the neighbors, as well as my folks, know it all and I never knew the hour when he would take the lives of myself and our three children."

SENATE AND HOUSE MOURN MORGAN DEATH

Committees from Both Branches Will Accompany Body to Old Alabama Home.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Committees from the Senate and House will accompany the remains of the late Senator John Tyler Morgan to his old home at Selma, Ala., where they will be interred. Funeral services will be held in this city on Friday.

The cause assigned for Senator Morgan's death, which occurred at 11:15 last night, was aging pectoris. He had been critically ill for the past ten days, and his two daughters, Misses Mary and Cornelia Morgan, were at the bedside when the end came.

Eighty-three Next Week.

Senator Morgan would have been eighty-three years old on the twentieth of this month. He had been a member of the United States Senate for thirty years and was recently elected for another six-year term. Only two other senators, Hale and Allison, have served so long, and only two brothers, Pettus of Alabama and Wilson of Maryland, have reached so venerable an age.

Senator Morgan's name will always be associated with the Nicaragua Canal. In season and out of season, for almost a quarter of a century he urged the necessity of a waterway to connect the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

His conference was for the Nicaraguan route, and when Senator Hanna rallied the Republican forces and Congress voted for the Panama route Senator Morgan was a disappointed man.

Indefatigable Worker.

During the last session his colleagues regretfully noted his failing health. Usually regular in his attendance upon the sessions of the Senate, he was unable to be present more than half a dozen times. Winter's illness was merely physical disability, however. His mind remained just as vigorous and alert as ever, and up to the time that he was forced to take to his bed he worked indefatigably at his desk up to a late hour at night.

He was a voluminous writer, and not willing to dictate to a stenographer, wrote out to the last with the bulky reports and long speeches with which he used to entertain the Senate.

With Senator Morgan's death the last of the "Southern brigadiers" of the Senate passes away.

CHEER SWEDES AT HARVARD.

A large crowd of Harvard students gathered in the Harvard Union last night to hear the joint concert given by the Harvard Mandolin Club and the Swedish Singing Society of Boston. The Swedes were encored till their list of songs was exhausted, and then they began the string over again.

INQUEST TO SOLVE GOODING DEATH MYSTERY

Medical Examiner Refuses to Allow Cremation of Body of Woman.

The body of Miss Adah Gooding, who died from illuminating gas at the City Hospital Relief Station last Saturday, is still lying at the undertaker's, where it will remain until after an inquest, which will be held to determine how she came to her death. Although there have been various rumors in circulation relative to the decision to hold up the cremation of the woman, one being that the police thought the body of some other woman had been substituted for Mrs. Gooding, the authorities are satisfied that the dead woman is the one they arrested as Mrs. Gooding on a charge of using the mails for fraudulent purposes.

Dr. Magrath is satisfied that the woman came to her death by inhaling gas, probably with suicidal intent.

Walter P. Hall, who formerly lived in Mrs. Gooding's apartments, who was also a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter at his office at No. 114 State street, said:

"I believe that Mrs. Gooding was a suicide. I do not think that she met with foul play. I gave up my room at her home about a week before her death occurred and I have not been in her apartments since that time. I often heard Mrs. Gooding speak lightly of life, and I was not at all surprised to hear of her death. I do not know that she had any relatives and if she has I do not know where they live."

POLICE SERGEANT'S DAUGHTER WEDS

Alice M. Pendergast, daughter of Police Sergeant James E. Pendergast of Station 11, Dorchester, was married to Dr. Edward Hall Bonnell of No. 76 Bowdoin street, St. Margaret's Church to-day, the Rev. Michael J. Scully officiating. The bridesmaid was Miss Helen W. Fitzpatrick, and the best man was Timothy W. Callahan.

'MAYOR' LOSES RECOUNT FIGHT

By Boston American Leased Wire.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 12.—The Independence League's two-year campaign for a recount of the votes cast at the New York mayoralty election of 1905 has triumphed.

Both branches of the Legislature have passed the Prentice bill over the McClellan-McGowan veto by overwhelming votes, and the measure is now in the hands of Governor Hughes.

In compliance with a pledge in his first message, reinforced by a special one a month ago, the Governor may be expected to approve it, certainly before the expiration of the week.

$200,000 LOSS BY INCENDIARY FIRE

CLEVELAND, O., June 12.—An incendiary fire to-day destroyed half of the business section of Girard, O., on the Erie Railroad, near Youngstown. Eight business blocks were destroyed, with two residences. The total loss is $200,000.

PRESIDENT OFF FOR SAGAMORE

WASHINGTON, June 12.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt left for Oyster Bay promptly at 8:50 o'clock this morning. Secretaries Cortelyou, Straus, Garfield and Root and Admiral Cowles and Assistant Secretary of State Bacon were among those who saw them off.

Several hundred people assembled in the station and cheered the President lustily as the train pulled out.

At Jersey City the President will take a rig for Long Island City, and will reach Oyster Bay about 5 o'clock this evening.

A score of clerks and secretaries accompanied the President to the "summer capital." He will not return to Washington until October.

HAVERHILL, June 12.—Constable John Willis of West Newbury has won fame by over three miles of field and woodland and finally running them down in a swamp and corralling them.

WOMAN WINS VERSE CONTEST

Mrs. Olive H. Bragdon of No. 19 Upton street, Boston, will occupy a box at the Colonial Theatre to-night, for she won the prize offered by the "Time the Place and the Girl" company for the best couplet containing the name of the play. There were 420 verses sent in by so many persons.

Mrs. Bragdon's offering was:

A Summer night,
The moon shining bright;
A bank and the brooklet's low purl;
A meeting by chance,
A "Rolling Stone" dance;
The Time, the Place and the Girl."

Then the moon rose with her face
Most alluring for grace,
The bank and the waters ambient,
Two hearts beating
A challenge that said
"Rose's the Time, the Place and the Girl."

But the appointment soon
Proved a moment too soon,
Ah, it was a chap's blood all aswirl;
Life so near to be wasted,
What chap could resist
The Time, the Place and the Girl?

BEEF TRUST RAISES PRICES

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 12.—The Beef Trust boosted the price of meat again today, raising it out of the reach of the poor men. Whole beeves, which last fall were quoted at 7 cents a pound, today exacted 9½ cents, and there was an ominous feeling that within a few days the price would be 10 cents. Similar increases are made throughout the list, including dressed poultry, thirty, the great price supply of which is controlled by the trust.

That the trust is just as strong and effective as it was before the federal grand jury in Chicago made its investigation two years ago is indicated by the fact that all of the packers quote the same prices for their products and do it simultaneously.

NATURE PROVIDES FOR SICK WOMEN

a more potent remedy in the roots and herbs of the field than was ever produced from drugs.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers few drugs were used in medicines and Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., in her study of roots and herbs and their power over disease discovered and gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an honest, tried and true remedy of unquestionable therapeutic value.

During its record of more than thirty years, its long list of actual cures of those serious ills peculiar to women, entitles Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to the respect and confidence of every fair minded person and every thinking woman.

When women are troubled with irregular or painful functions, weakness, displacements, ulceration or inflammation, backache, flatulency, general debility, indigestion or nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

No other remedy in the country has such a record of cures of female ills, and thousands of women residing in every part of the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable compound and what it has done for them.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. For twenty-five years she has been advising sick women free of charge. She is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and as her assistant for years before her decease advised under her immediate direction. Address, Lynn, Mass.

CINCINNATI, June 12.—Boston and Cincinnati will clash for the third and last time this afternoon. It will be a rubber game, each team having captured half of the double-header yesterday.

"Young Cy" Young will twirl for the Bostons, according to the advices of Manager Tenney, while Jake Weimer will probably do the carving for the home forces.

The Bostons won the first game yesterday, 2 to 1, and lost the second, 7 to 3.

Gus Dorner, who is an ex-Red, was the figure on the rubber for the Bostons, and he kept the home team from hitting the ball hard. The Doves smashed the sphere in good shape, but their run-getting was kept down because of the sharp fielding of the locals. The Hubites got their deciding run in the ninth inning.

The Bostons dropped the second game with Lindaman pitted against Ewing, the star man of the home pitching staff. The Reds batted fiercely and won handily.

At last the Pilgrims have broken the ice with the Clevelands. After losing five straight games to the Naps this season, the local players got on to their job yesterday, and made the proud wagon tongue wielders from the Forest City look like selling platers.

The men, under the leadership of the peerless fighter, Jim McGuire, have been buoyed up wonderfully by the victory over Lajoie's braves, and they are determined to duplicate the feat this afternoon, when the two teams clash for the last time for over a month.

Yesterday's great triumph was just what they needed. It was the route that braced the men up, and they will have the nerve to-day to turn off another victory.

Jim McGuire certainly has accomplished wonders in the two days in which he has had charge of the team. On his first appearance he was obliged to take hold of a bunch of practically disorganized players, and they lost, although McGuire's potent hand was evident at all stages of the game, and it gave promises of some star work in the future. Yesterday McGuire got in his good work, and the Pilgrims won in rather easy fashion.

This afternoon's game promises to be a battle of former college pitching stars, as Ralph Glaze is slated to work for the home talent, while Walter Clarkson, formerly of the Highlanders, is booked to twirl for the visitors.

Glazie used to be the great boxman of Dartmouth College, while Clarkson used to shine on the Harvard diamond. It should be an interesting contest between the two great rookers of the college diamond, and it would not be surprising to see the Pilgrim win out, as he appears to be a little steadier than the ex-Crimsonite.

To-morrow will be "Slight Day" at the Huntington avenue grounds, and there is sure to be a big crowd on hand to see the Pilgrims and the Providence team, of the Eastern League, battle. The two teams met earlier in the season, and the minor league boys were the victors. A big sum of money will be realized for the widow of the late Chick Stahl, star centre fielder of the Bostons.

AMERICAN MEDAL FOR CHAMP BIKE RIDERS

Manager Alock McLean has assumed charge of the Revere cycle track and as a starter for the racing season has inaugurated what will be known as the motor-paced tournament for the BOSTON AMERICAN diamond medal, to be won at the conclusion of the season.

The medal donated by the BOSTON AMERICAN is valued at $200, and is a work of the jewellers' art. It will be competed for by the motor-paced riders of the world, and the winner of the most number of races will be adjudged its dual possessor.

The first race for the medal will take place June 17 at Revere, when an eight-mile race will be on the card and the three riders to compete are Jimmy Moran, Hugh McLean and Elmer Collins.

As the medal will be emblematic of the championship of the motor-pace game, it will attract all the riders in the business, and before the end of the season probably several foreign riders will be after it.

Robbie Walthour has written across from Europe, wanting to break his contract abroad that he might return immediately, and the illness of his wife is also likely to hurry his trip, in which case he will be here to compete for the medal. Means Bedell, Joan Bedell and Louis Metling are either on riders who will be eligible to go after the trophy.

On Bunker Hill Day the first race in the series will take place, and the three popular riders will be in the finest possible form to race for an hour. There will also be a ten-mile race between Dennis Conaghy, of Everett, and Pat Logan, of South Boston, besides amateur events.

DICK LAWRENCE TOPS LIST AT COMBINATION

With nearly every stall at Combination Park occupied, there is plenty doing on the track when weather permits. Among the trainers noted working out horses are Frank Fox, Dick Lawrence, Fred Ribelout, G. Bailey, Charley Lockwood, George Davis, Lon Newbert, "Whitey" Crowley, Frank Delane, A. E. Russell, Allen Rooke and N. Jenks.

Two arrivals today were Pitt Collins and J. M. E. Morrill, of the Dorchester Driving Club. The former has been engaged to handle the horses of J. W. Linnehan, including Budweser, 2:18¼; J. W. L. and Helen Dare, which will later be raced through the Cranberry circuit. Mr. Morrill will train his trotting mare Hotvelta, by Bingen, 2:06¾, for a campaign over the two-lap rings, and predicts three times in better than 2:20 for her in a few weeks.

The fastest mile to date at Combination is held by Dick Lawrence with his pacing gelding, Hey dee Diddle, 2:11¼, which he stepped in 2:21, the last half in 1:03¾. He is shaping him up for a trip through the New York and Pennsylvania circuits, beginning with next month.

Frank Fox is next in order, with a couple of miles in 2:22 with his pacing mare Gloria, 2:10¾. He is going slow, as he is intending to race her for some time yet.

Morgan Gill, 2:13¾, the pacing mare owned by George Hunt of Boston, is counted to win a lot of money this year. Last Summer she was timed separately over a half-mile track in 2:12. In a race, and is now easily working final quarters for Bailey in 32 seconds.

Crowley stepped Joseph E. Swendeman's little mare, Gretchen, 2:18¾, a half in 1:09, the last quarter in 33 seconds, and Newbert turned the last quarter with Edith R. in the same time. It is the rule now with all the trainers to jog their pupils handily on the backstretch the second time around the track and then march them along home at nearly top speed.

BAY STATE AUTOISTS TO HAVE MEET ON LABOR DAY

By J. C. Kerrison.

After having held a most successful race meet the race committee of the Bay State Automobile Association is now confronted with another heroic task, that of arranging for some sort of a race meet on Labor Day next. This committee met with such signal success on its last venture that at the meeting of the board of directors of the B. S. A. A., held yesterday afternoon, it was authorized to proceed with arrangements for next September, the character of the meeting being left in the hands of the committee. Both gentlemen, L. R. Speare and F. A. Hinchcliffe, desired to decline the honors thrust upon them, but the board said, "Nay," and it is now up to them to carry along the work.

The recent meeting resulted in a handsome profit to the club, just exactly the amount is not known, as all accounts have not been received. Many matters of interest to the association were considered at the meeting held yesterday, and the results will be known within a short time. The committee announced that every touring committee appointed for the three days' outing is to continue for the three days, starting at Quincy Point commencing next Saturday, and also stated that it was considering the advisability of holding an endurance contest over some difficult roads within the very near future.

Al Measure, who as captain of the Lowells at the recent race meet scored so decided a success, has been appointed captain of the Bay State team for the fall game at Eastern Point next Saturday afternoon. He is now looking for every good talent, with which to combat the efforts of the married aggregation, which will be captained by Billy Gray. Of the latter team will be Earnest Gilmore, who in previous years made such a spectacular play at short stop and who, together with Billy Burke, is coming over from New York just for this outing. Harry Fosdick, a member of the committee, will perform in some striking attitude, while Colonel Horace G. Keene, another committeeman, will act as referee, and woe be unto the man who questions his decision. The attendance on the three days' outing promises to be a most gratifying one, and with fair weather success is assured.

George W. Bennett, sales manager of the Knox Automobile Company, was in town yesterday, as the guest of A. F. Underhill, of the Reed-Underhill Company, local agents for the Knox.

A pilgrimage that promises to develop into a veritable invasion—the "Yankee peril," as thought of when French and German automobile makers have been freezing for months—began when James Coates, secretary and treasurer of the Mobile Motor Company, and R. M. Lockwood, manager of the Ford export department, sailed for Europe.

A Bottle That Imitates Cosmic Carpentry

As This EARTH Is Kept Warm, So the BOTTLE Is Kept Warm

Many men were busy in the club. Mr. Daniel Cohalon was giving a patriotic Irish dinner in honor of Mr. O'Donnell. The purpose of the dinner was to free Ireland—a task that Mr. Cohalon is determined to carry out if he has to hurt the feelings of King Edward and all the royal family.

Mr. John Devoy, the Gaelic editor, was patiently explaining to F. P. Dunne that all Irish bills born under the clock tower must NECESSARILY be bad, because of their being made by Englishmen.

Downstairs Mr. Murphy, whose real name is Cross and Company, was showing to his enraptured friends a small bottle that keeps COLD, if you want it to, or HOT, if you want it to. About that bottle we want to talk.

The new invention is called "The Thermos Bottle." Whether this bottle will permanently do all the things that it is said to do, we do not know. Those that wish to find out must experiment through purchase. But we do know that the idea is a plausible one, and an intensely interesting one, AS IT ACTUALLY IMITATES IN THE LITTLE BOTTLE, THAT YOU CAN CARRY AROUND IN YOUR POCKET, THE PLAN THAT IS USED IN KEEPING THIS EARTH FIT TO LIVE UPON.

This Thermos bottle will keep liquids ice cold all day, or it will keep things boiling hot for hours, as you prefer. Whatever you put in the bottle at a certain temperature, high or low, remains at that temperature, no matter what the weather may be.

For instance, a workman going off in the morning can fill the bottle with hot coffee and find it hot at noon on a cold Winter day. A woman going out to the park with a child can put cool milk in the bottle and find it cool hours afterward, even though it may have lain upon the grass in the hot sunlight.

These statements seem extraordinary; but, according to Mr. Murphy's explanation, they are entirely simple. There is no chemical, no heating, no ice. The bottle is constructed in such a way as to prevent heat from coming out or from going in. If you put hot stuff inside the bottle the heat cannot come OUT. If you put cold stuff inside the bottle the heat cannot go IN and spoil its coldness. And this is because the bottle is built upon the lines of the earth on which you live.

The bottle consists of two glass bottles, one inside the other and joined together at the neck. There is an air space between the two bottles, or divisions, AND FROM THIS ALL OF THE AIR HAS BEEN EXTRACTED, FORMING A VACUUM, as nearly complete as possible. And that is all the secret there is to it.

Heat does not travel through a vacuum. Heat can no more go from one side to another of a chamber containing no air than you could go from one side to another of a room containing no floor. The mysterious thing we call heat must move from one atom of the air to the next, and so on. If you take the air out of a space surrounding the bottle the heat can neither go out nor go in, and therefore the inside must stay at the original temperature. There could be only a slight loss or addition of heat at the neck where the two are joined.

You may ask, "What has that to do with the way our earth is constructed?" It has EVERYTHING to do with it. This earth and the water on it, and the air around it, are supplied with a certain amount of heat. The inside of the earth is supposed to be very hot, perhaps boiling hot. In any case, we have only a LIMITED amount of heat here, in addition to that which comes to us from the sun in the daytime, and that sun heat is a mystery—we know nothing of its nature or how it gets here. But we do know that the amount of heat which we possess in the earth itself is limited. And we know that the only thing that saves us is the fact that the earth is built like the Thermos bottle, with a vacuum all around it, and the heat cannot go out through that vacuum.

There is no such thing in the world as a REAL vacuum. Nothing could be absolutely EMPTY. But around us there is A GOOD ENOUGH VACUUM—that is to say, there is the mass of ether, so called, a substance so thin that we can hardly conceive of it. Through this ether our earth rolls, carrying its atmosphere and its heat along with it. And after millions of years of rolling we have got almost as much heat as we started out with. We have lost only just enough of it to give a crust to our earth and make our life possible. And millions of years from now, thanks to this almost complete vacuum and non-conductor of heat surrounding us, we shall still have the heat with us.

This ether that surrounds us, and in which our warm earth travels, is inconceivably cold. If you could get to the top of this atmosphere—it is not so many miles high—and stick your head out into that ether your head would be frozen solid in about a hundredth part of a second. If our atmosphere should vanish, and if the cold ether should close down and come in contact with our earth, all the oceans and lakes would become solid lumps of ice, and every living thing would instantly be frozen stiff and frozen stiff forever, or until some heat-creating cataclysm should occur.

All of the heat in our earth, all the latent heat in the oceans, would be absorbed in a second by that cold ether around us except for the fact that the dreadful frozen ocean of ether through which our earth ship takes us IS A BAD CONDUCTOR OF HEAT. It is to all intents and purposes a vacuum, and this earth keeps its warmth miraculously with utter, inconceivable cold all around it. It is as remarkable as though a baby of three years should walk from here to the North Pole with bare feet and come home without even a frostbite.

We are glad to congratulate the inventive mind that has imitated the carpentry of the cosmos in a plain glass bottle that can be used by mothers, and workmen, and picnic parties, and others. It is a good thing occasionally to remember how much the world owes TO THE IDEAS BORN IN THE INVENTIVE BRAIN. Everything we have, from a corkscrew to a pile driver or a lightning express train, is the MATERIAL SHAPE of some IDEA, born in a human brain.

If it is true that human ingenuity has given us a bottle that will keep cold without ice, and warm without fire, man may set up one more small milestone on the long, dreary road that he has travelled for thousands of years past in his journey from helpless, brutal ignorance to the final complete knowledge that will crown him real ruler of the earth and of his own destiny.

Little Editorials from the People

TIME TO RIGHT RAILROAD WRONGS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The flurry and anxiety which to-day is manifest in the realm of the Solons, over the proposed absorption of the Boston & Maine system by the New Haven road, is not provoked by the mighty voice of the people. It is caused by some of the highly respectable insiders, who, after feeding for years at the crib of stock frozitions and manipulations, find themselves on the outside. The cries of "Stop Thief!" "Control by Foreign Corporation!" "Inflated Stock!" "Dr. Rogers's Position Threatened!" etc., are used as revenge at being overtaken and passed in their own game by others.

Disregard for law or the spirit of law is no new thing in the railroad combine in this State. The tax-payers of Massachusetts paid well for the digging of the Hoosac Tunnel; and the State government made solemn promise to the people that the tunnel would always be preserved as an independent highway to the West. This promise is written where all may read. But it did not deter the re-nowned Crane from turning over to the Boston & Maine this huge engineering monument of Massachusetts thrift.

If we have honest men in the Legislature—that is, if honest men are a majority there—the greatest opportunity they can find for benefiting the public lies in the correction of the wrongs that have been done by Crane and others in the railroad deals. Shake off the fetters that bind the public; return to them the Hoosac Tunnel that was builded by them as an independent highway; annul the scandalous lease of the Boston & Albany; quash the New Haven monopoly if it exists in form.

Yours truly,

F. M. McS.

The year was nineteen fifty-one.
An old man came to Washington.
"Please tell me where the Senate is,"
He asked a man, who said, "Gee whiz!

And I'm the Senate now, you know."
"Then tell me, friend," said that old man,
"Where's Congressman Smith of Michigan?"
"I ate the House, as you must know,
Some umpty-umpty years ago."
"Then," said the graybeard, "who are YOU?"
"I'm there—perchance I miss a few—

But the old man gently edged away;
"I'll hear the rest another day."

Is It Wrong to Fish on Sunday?

By Rev. Albert E. George

IF this question were asked one hundred years ago, there would be no doubt about the answer. To-day we look somewhat differently at the matter, not because we are growing less religious, but being broader in our interpretation of the observance of Sunday and more considerate of the recreation needed for working people, we are inclined to think it is a pardonable offence.

To go fishing every Sunday during the Summer opens out objectionable features.

There are higher things to be considered on that day; things that every one gains by making a right and a reasonable use of.

We do not want these to be forgotten, simply because they tend to elevate the individual, to put into him higher desires, making him think he is not a mere animal in his tastes and altogether rounding off his life in a shape that he will acknowledge to be one of the best qualities.

Don't imagine that the way that you may spend Sundays is the best way till you have sincerely made use of methods which have good in them when they are fairly tried and tried regularly.

These methods may only consume one hour and a little more on Sundays, but if you see good in them, stand by them, they will make you happier and contented when looked at aright.

To go fishing on Sundays after you have done something else which has put good thoughts and motives within may be the pleasantest way to take a mild recreation on that day.

Get into some quiet nook by a stream or a brook and sitting there quietly waiting for a bite and not being tormented by mosquitoes is no reflection on your religious belief.

Better do this than to go pining through the house and wondering what to do, making yourself disagreeable with your whines, not caring to read and trying to observe Sunday in a conventional way.

It is all very well to respect this kind of an individual who is souring home life on Sundays and cast reproaches upon the fellow who minds his own business and spends part of the day fishing off a dock or on a lake in a boat.

The other fellow may have broken the conventional lines of Sunday observance, but he is not making anyone unhappy, unless it may be the fish. He is enjoying himself in a very legitimate way.

Do not say he is breaking the observance of Sunday when he has fortified himself with acts that prove he has not overlooked the religious aspect.

He is enjoying himself. Let him alone and do not legislate about his conduct.

It is not the man who goes fishing on Sunday that is to be censured as the man who makes Sunday a dreadful day at home.

That man takes such a sombre view of that day as to make it hideous with his incrimination. He is to be censured more than the fellow who goes off with his tackle.

Make Sunday the happiest day of the week.

Get all the enlightenment upon this that you can.

You will want to divide it up with profit and pleasure.

All this legislation about what you can do and what you cannot do will never make Sunday an ideal day.

That depends upon yourself.

Law will never right the abuse of Sundays. It needs some sanctified common sense well applied by the individual, and whatever helps him to maintain the nobler features of the day will not tempt him to lower it by the abuse of recreations.

THE SURVIVAL OF THE FITTEST.

By James J. Montague.

"If baby is a weakling, kill it."—Boston Scientist.

WHEN Dr. Osler long ago announced that any one
Who'd passed the turn of forty years was just about all done,
We slugged our aged grandsire with an anvil in the chest,
And he amid our falling tears was laid away to rest.
We often miss the dear old man, but if the world's to thrive,
We know from modern science that the fittest must survive.

* * *

AND now we learn from Boston that the little children who
Are not quite physically fit must be disposed of, too.
We've chloroformed the baby, we've poisoned little Jim;
As Willie was a weakling we took an axe to him.
Bedelia fell and broke her arm one afternoon at play,
And as we feared it might not knit we threw her in the bay.

* * *

THE family's sort of shattered now, we broke it up a bit;
But those of us who still remain undoubtedly are fit.
And yet we read the daily press with pale and haunting fear,
And dread that some new scientist will presently appear
To prove that he's the only man who should remain alive,
And kill us all in order that the fittest may survive.
